MAY MEETING

Business

Thirty-one (31) members signed in. Barbara Mowrer gave the Treasurer's Report. The balance in the treasury as of May 21, 2012 was $1,454.34. Member news – Win Schurz is doing well after a recent hospitalization for heart problems, Shirley Summers hopes to become active in the club again soon and Jim Ward is on the mend after a heart attack. Dorathy Fry, LCPC Member #59 died May 21, 2012. Dot played a major role in strengthening the early components of LCPC. An avid reader, she encouraged growth of our library. As a colorful speaker, she inspired members to present monthly programs and with her background in teaching, girl scouts and 4-H, she saw potential in many of us - and encouraged us to become a leading postcard club 20 years ago. Poor health kept Dot from attending meetings in recent years but she kept in touch thru The Card, reminiscing with members who found time to visit. She was a genuine treasure and will be missed. Expo – Jere Greider (chair) needs help in setting up for the show on Friday evening, August 17th. Please contact him if you can help. Al Schaub won $12.50 in the 50-50 drawing.

Program

The program for the evening, lead by Mark Arbogast, was devoted to a consideration of the Club's finances. Mark presented a) a summary of his review of LCPC's financial situation, which shows a decline in the treasury's balance and b) proposals put forth by the board to improve our fiscal health. A general discussion followed Mark's presentation during which several additional ideas were offered.

Helen's Country Store

Antique Mecca in Bainbridge, PA

There must be an LCPC member who knew Helen Jourdet, owner of Helen's Country Store in Bainbridge. Let's hear from you with anecdotes about Helen for a future CARD. We do know that Helen S. Jourdet was born Jan. 13, 1896 and died Nov. 13, 1962. This information comes from a modest tombstone in the Bainbridge Cemetery. One card has its back, "Charlie on steps." There is no Chas. Jourdet buried next to Helen, so likely he was a friend.

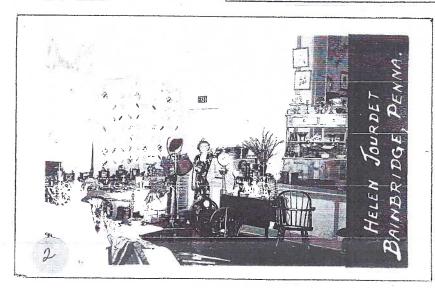

We've seen these five RP postcards and one photogravure card (#1) of Helen's Country Store. Stamp boxes place the time photo cards in the 1940s and 1950s. The store seems confined to one room in her home, however large name cards seen in these views suggest Helen may have sold at antique shows.

The cards are all unused, so placing them in a time sequence has been merely a pastime.

#1 "Charlie" is on the stairs. Helen stands between a small spinet (?) and two large wooden mantels. The inventory is very different from the next five views.

#2 Helen's name is written into the negative. Compared to later photos, this inventory seems meager. It features a baby cradle, a Franklin-type stove, and a Windsor chair on the floor. A modest Helen stands back next to the door.

#3 Helen, now front and center, stands between a pot-bellied stove and two ubiquitous captain's chairs. We also see a hay fork, a writing desk and doll or baby clothing hanging overhead. Tall shelving occupies the left wall and two long tables are laden with antiques.

#4 This view was likely taken in the same hour as #3, but now Helen is posed with a customer; both in the captain's chairs and holding books or albums. The camera has shifted to the right, showing more of the stairway.

Helen's County Store, Bainbridge, Lancuster County, Pa.

#5 Helen sits with the same lady (match her shoes and hat) as on PC #4. Different quilts cover the walls; a doll rides a hobby horse. Tulips, still growing in a wooden flat, suggest it must be close to Easter.

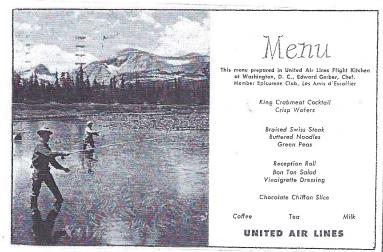

Helen's Country Store, Bainbridge, Lancaster County, Pa.

#6 Helen sits with two gentlemen. The rabbits have found refuge near a plant pole. More dolls and doll heads are seen. The desk is still there. Did she price it high enough that it conveniently served her to write up sales? This card was on Ebay in February; asking price was $9.99.

The Postcard Menu

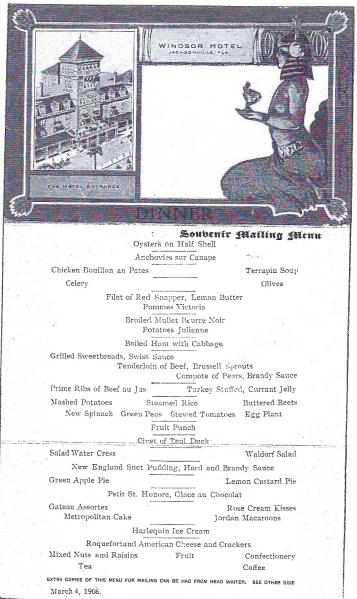

As a stay-at-home, I can't speak for present day menus for the traveler, but I was always told that even in local restaurants, "the bigger the menu, the higher and the prices" which is no longer true. Most of my menus are giant signs before you reach the drive-thru window.

Looking for postcard menus is not much of a challenge. Most dealers file them as a separate subject, so you can exhaust your hunt at a show in short order. Finding menus is good condition is a challenge, since old menus are often 2, 3, and 4 times the size of a regular PC and so seldom survive.

The newest menu we show here was used on the United Air Line in 1959. (That's over 50 years ago, believe it or not!) The menu "was prepared in the UAL flight kit-chen at Wash., DC, Edw. Gerber, Chef, member Epicurean Club." Braised Swiss steak, crabmeat cocktail, salad, and cake were offered. Harold, the writer, would have racked up plenty of air miles had they been offered back then. "Julia and I went to the theater in NYC last evening. I at-tended a meeting in DC today; am now flying to Chicago for mtg. tomorrow. Wish these trips would bring me to York,"

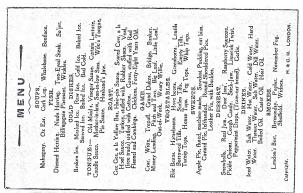

Windsor Hotel, Jacksonville, Florida offered this menu three times the size of a regular PC. Variety was evident on the hotel's Souvenir Mailing Menu for March 4, 1906 "extra copies for mailing can be had from the head waiter." Oysters, anchovies, chicken and terrapin soups, filet of red snapper, boiled ham w/cabbage, beef tenderloin, stuffed turkey, civet of teal duck, New England suet pudding with hard and brandy sauce, and a host of desserts incl. harlequin ice cream. It was mailed Mar. 4, 1906 to MI.

Four Tracks near Relay, MD.

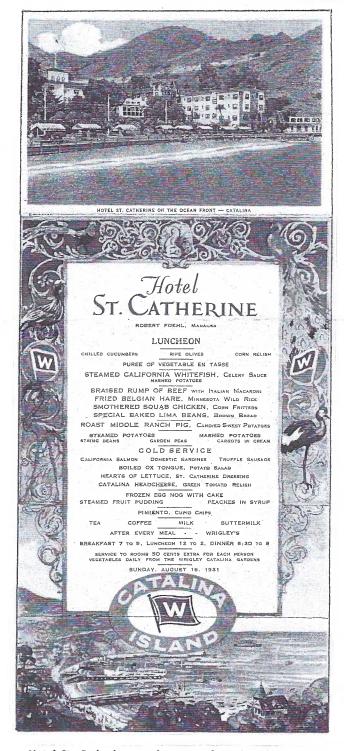

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad menu is twice the size of a regular PC and mailed as a fold-over. "Monday morning, Sept. 26. We are passing thru Penn. Beautiful scenery east of Pittsburgh. Had a good night's sleep. Both feeling fine. Had a good breakfast – this is the menu souvenir for everyone. Train running so fast can hardly write. Ma & Pa." The PC has a Cumberland Transit Clerk postmark for Sep. 27, 12 M, 1915. Breakfast was oatmeal, ham or bacon w/eggs, hashed browns, rolls, muffins, and beverages for 50¢.

This PC was published by Pacific Mail Steamship Co., "Sunshine Belt to the Orient." Dinner d'Adieu (parting dinner) - To our Canal Zone passengers on the S. S. Columbia, Voyage 31 out-ward." The menu is three times regular postcard size. A colorful scene tops the menu that offered these entrees: poached king salmon, sugar cured ham, filet mignon, ribs of beef, and roast turkey as well as a variety of side dishes and desserts. "After departure from Cristobal, CZ, wines and liquors will be for sale to passengers." The postmark is unclear (the postage stamp was removed) but the receiving cancel is Glendale, CA, Sept. 28, 1923.

Someone had a bone to pick with either hotels or menus in general. Here's a comic menu. Publ. by H&CH, London.

Hotel St. Catherine on the ocean front has the grand-daddy of menu postcards. It's four times regular PC size, has a gorgeous colored border with a colored view of the hotel. Three sections of the reverse are a detailed list of "Things to do at Catalina" and the remaining quarter is a d/b postcard mailed to Phila. from Avalon, CA on 8/31/31. The "luncheon" on Sunday, Aug. 16, 1931 featured steamed Calif. white fish, rump of beef, fried Belgian hare, smothered squab chicken, special baked lima beans, and roast Middle Ranch pig. Cold service/food was also available along with desserts incl. frozen egg nog w/cake. "After every meal — Wrigley's (gum). Service to rooms 50¢ extra. Vegetables daily from the Wrigley Catalina Gardens."

The Wedding Season

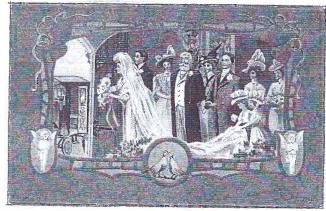

Throwing Rice

People have been throwing rice at weddings since the time of the Assyrians and Egyptians. Of late, however, there are laws in some local communities banning the practice because 1) people can slip and fall on wet rice and 2) it is bad for birds. They eat it, but they can't digest it well, causing them to get sick. Instead, bird seed and blowing bubbles take the place of rice, leaving little or no clean-up for a small church staff. Frank Carolan O'Neill is the artist for this 1910 card published by the Theochrome Company.

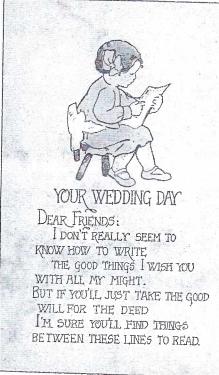

Congratulations and May Your Lives Be One Glorious Sunset are two cards in a likely set of four or six by the Langsdorf Co. The vertical PC was sent in 1909 from Uncle Harry in Phila. to Mr. and Mrs. Taylor in Washington, PA.

Oh, you, my Sweetheart is a fair stab at translating "O, du mein Pusselchen" reflecting the sentiments of the young man as he gives his girl a peck on her cheek. True, it isn't a wedding postcard; but it's not a valentine either with yellow the predominant color. The cancellation on the d/b German card is gone because the stamp was removed.

Your Wedding Day was published by the J. Raymond Howe Co., Chicago, by an unknown artist. The little girl is colored in soft pastels.

For a little wedding humor, we offer this couple, one of 12 designs in Series #769 by the Souvenir Publishing Co., NY. Get Married on Friday the 13 you will always have something to blame it on.
