Penryn Post Office and Weber's Store

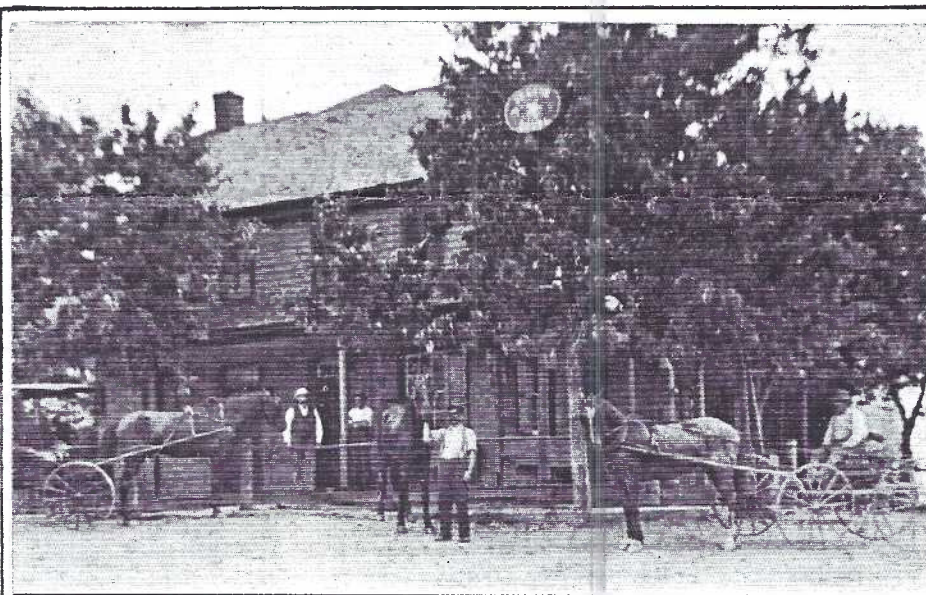

J. T. WEBER, PUBLISHER

H.H.Witmeyer was the first postmaster, Sept.28,1891. J.T.Weber took charge of it and the general store not long after. He had a white goatee and one frosted eye glass.He was in charge of the Lutheran Sunday School and taught in a one-room school. Weber sold to Rob Biemesderfer c.1929 but Weber's daughter Ruth Malschnee later became postmistress. Behind the store was the Penryn Tobacco Co., specializing in "Penryn Special" and "Everybody's", popular chewing tobaccos up to the 1950's.

J. A. Hoke's Hotel, Penryn, Pa.

T. WEBER, PUBLISHER

Hoke's Hotel is now a window dressing store with an addition on the left. An ice house and cattle auctions were old time attractions. But neither held a candle to the traveling medicine shows. The back of the wagon opened to a stage and featured Uncle Tom's Cabin, Harold recalls. Between acts they sold cure-all medicines and handkerchiefs.

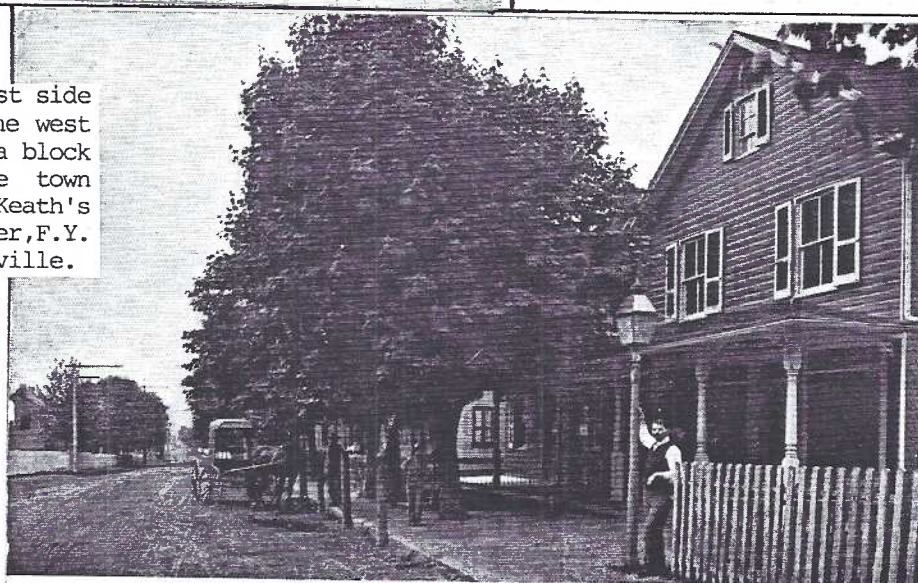

Hoke's Hotel and Square, Penryn, Pa.

J. T. WEBER, PUBLISHER

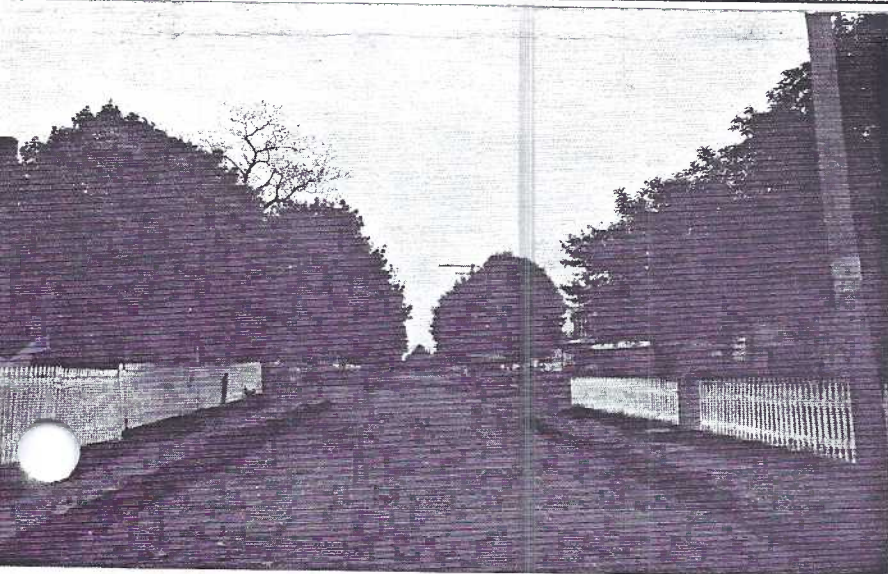

The two churches in town had their own picnic on different Saturdays in August. Bands were hired to come by wagon (later bus) and play in the Square on Saturday morning. Then the whole town followed the band to the picnic grove a few blocks away. The whole town? Right. No one worked on Picnic Saturdays in Penryn not for over 100 years!

The general store served from the east side of the house, the family lived on the west side. Today it's a duplex home. Only a block from Weber's, the bustling little town easily supported two general stores. Keath's lasted into the 1940's. A.Y.'s brother, F.Y. had a general store at nearby Elstonville.

A. Y. Keath's Store, Penryn, Pa.

D. C. Keath's Coach Works, Penryn, Pa.

J. T. WEBER, PUBLISHER

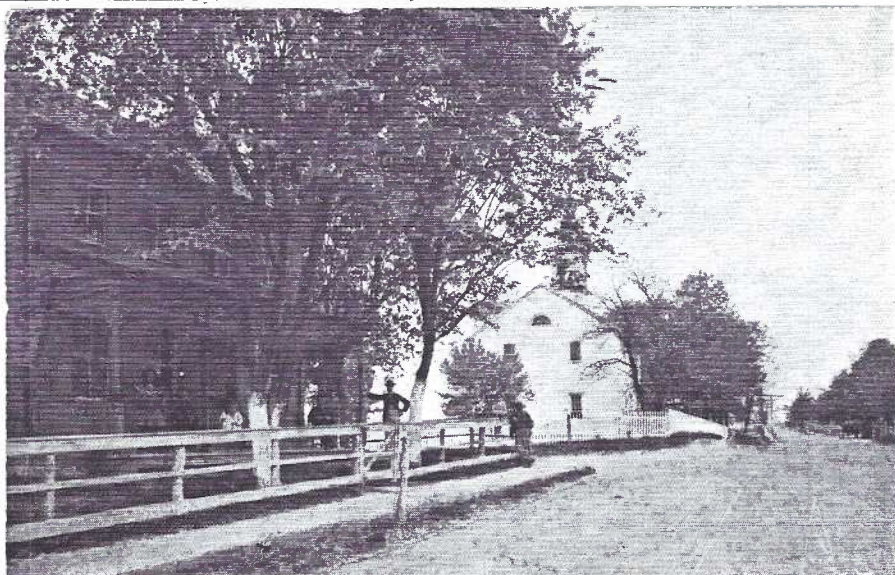

David C. Keath had a wheelwright shop on the south side of Newport Rd. (rt.) His paint shop was on the north side. After the wagon business declined Keath painted designs on plank bottom chairs and other furniture. His new business was great. He was a first-rate striper of wagons and chairs!

Phares Will was a blacksmith of some renown. Signed spatulas, meat forks, tobacco spears and many more items of superior quality have placed him in references of early ironsmiths. Now a residence, too, the smithy was larger than the view shows. In fact, Wills sold Reber and Studebaker wagons at the rear of the smithy. You can barely detect a sturdy framework beneath the front eave. It was a cranky horse hoist. Harold would watch Phares corner a stubborn horse and lead it into the frame. With block and tackle he'd lift it off its feet and commence shoeing with no interference from the beast!

J. W. Biemesderfer's Residence and Lutheran Church, Penryn, Pa.
" Reformed "

J. T. WEBER, PUBLISHER

Biemesderfer was a brother-in-law of J.T.
Weber. Harold knows he lived across the road
but not in the house which he owned along with the bakery run by H.H.Heagy that was attached at the rear. Harold's dad bought the home and bakery at sheriff's sale in 1936. The church building shown was shared by both congregations. It, along with the cemetery, a farm and the picnic woods were in a land grant from the Penn family. The farm was sold about 1912.

The doctor built the fine home in 1900. His general practice office was at the left rear of the home. Harold's dad remembers seeing all of the family's belonging at nearby White Oak RR depot. The doctor moved his family to Lewisburg (or Lewistown) quite suddenly but then moved back in a few weeks before the home was sold! Harold's father bought the home from the doctor's widow in 1941. His bedroom was the top front dormer until he married and moved out in 1948.

Vacating the old building, the Lutherans built their own edifice in 1912. Members volunteered horses and wagons to haul the brick and Peach Bottom slate from the nearby (but up a very steep hill) White Oak RR depot. An educational wing was added on the north side in the 1950's.

The railroad depot is off the view to the right.Many north-bound salesmen stayed here after business in Lancaster.The White Oak/Whiteoak postal service ran from 1855 to 1935.Two grist mills,a saw mill and later electric-power generators made White Oak a thriving crossroads from the water power of Chickies Creek. Electric power even served the Penryn community.

TYPICAL LANCASTER COUNTY RURAL SCHOOL

AMISH CHILDREN GOING TO SCHOOL, LANCASTER COUNTY, PA.

This div. back b/w PC was published by Elmer McClain in 1953. It claims to be at Elm, PA. It's actually one mile north of Penryn. It and an aerial view b/w chrome by Paul Heine, manager of the Hotel Brunswick, both claim the school to be "typical of those used by Amish and Mennonites". In fact, until recent years there were no Amish in the area and few Mennonites, the majority of plain folks being Brethren. The school was Heine's and used exclusively for "Amish feasts" served to his Brunswick guests. They were transported by bus. McClain was manager of the local bus depot for many years. An addition equal to the original school house size has been added to the rear and made into a residence on Locust Grove Road.

Open Letter Pertaining to the LCPC Expo

August 21, I spoke up at the meeting as to some of the conditions that were lacking at the Expo, hopefully due to that, and other comments and suggestions received, things will change for the better. Such as, the food concession, and try to help with the attendance.

But, one thing I personally took exception to, and I know I am not the only dealer that does it, is that earlier out-of-town Shows affected sales. I personally see to it that I restock and fill all holes in my albums before all of my Shows, other dealers do also, and this makes for a better Show for everyone, dealer and collector. I know this does not make a difference to the local people because I only sold one card to one local member. Thanks to the out of town collectors and dealers I had a good Show; but think that the dealers should be solicited for both comments and suggestions as to making our Show better or else the feasibility of even having a Show.

PICNIC FOLLOW-UP

Ruth Lines' DEVILED CORN AND CRAB CASSEROLE received raves from several members. We offer the recipe here. If you've difficulty reading it (we're cramped for space) Ruth will have an enlarged copy for you.

½ cup butter or oleo	1 7½ oz. can crab meat, flaked
2 Tbsp all-purpose flour	2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
1 tsp prepared mustard	1 1-lb can whole kernel corn
½ tsp Worcestershire	1 1-lb. "cream-style", drained
1 Tbsp lemon juice	½ cup shredded cheddar crumbs
½ tsp salt	about 14 crackers
dash of pepper	1 Tbsp butter, melted
½ cup milk

In saucepan, melt butter; stir in next 7 items. Cook, stir until mixture chickens and bubbles. Remove from heat; carefully stir in crabmeat, eggs, corn.

Spoon into 1½ qt. casserole; sprinkle cheese on top. Combine cracker crumbs, butter; sprinkle over cheese. Bake at 350 for 45 min. or til heated thru. May garnish w/hard-cooked egg cut in wedges and olive slices. Serves 6 to 8.

Our Halloween postcards on pg.7 feature the Man in the Moon. The witches' hats and dresses are bright red, Old Man Moon a deep yellow in a grey-blue sky. The PCs are from the Lion TM series #116 (Winsch-type back.)

First Quarter Intermission

Gerald Hostetter and I have been spending many hours compiling this list trusting it will be used by our readers. REMEMBER, these are POST CARD types we've found, along with Charlie Griffiths, on postcards of Lancaster City and County only.

The majority of these types have the name of the printer on the card. So don't be discouraged with the similarity of some "POST CARDS", but use the list as a learning tool. It can make collecting a lot more fun.

Jim Ward.
